Dear _____,

This is a follow up reminder.

The report on your Full Body Thermogram on _____, recommends a six-month follow-up Breast Thermogram because of a thermographic abnormality. I have included part of your report with that finding highlighted so that you can see what we are referring to.

When we follow-up and take the second or third or fourth Thermogram (remember, there is no radiation, so no danger), and then take a second and third look at the areas in question, we can see how the body is responding. Is the body reacting as if it is preparing to go into tumor mode? Is it improving? Or is it stable and not changing?

Perhaps, you have been doing the work necessary and your risk is going down. By comparing previous Thermograms, we can clearly see what has or has not been happening since the last scan.

Regardless, thermography SAFELY reveals the trend.

You may now book your appointment on our website: _____. The charge for this exam if performed 6 months or less from your previous study, is $____, (normally $____.00).

I look forward to seeing you again,
